WINTER

Beginnings – Editors Page

Dear Readers,

Phew !Sorry Readers that this issue will be a little late but I hope you will find it both interesting and useful

One thing to say. is that the front cover of the Mag is a drawing made by Donald Stewart an artist who lived with his wife at ‘Beam Ends’ the cottage you pass on the way up to church. You can just see his name on the bottom right of the picture. He also designed the cross in St Botolph’s which hangs over the Nave. Well I hope you are enjoying December and all the prep you might be doing for Christmas. I hope it snows but only when everyone has done their Christmas journeys, to family or holidays. So I hope you have a Happy Christmas and look forward to 2025 !

Best Wishes Sue

Parish Church of St Botolph's DECEMBER 2024/JANUARY 2025

Jeremy writes: - One of the important themes in the Christmas story is that of silence. The Gospel tells of Mary's silence being broken by the angel who appeared to her with world-shattering news, and then the long silence as the Baby grows in her womb. There is the night-time silence of the fields above Bethlehem which was shattered as angels appeared to tell the shepherds of the Child born in the stable, and, above all, the silence of God's action in bringing Jesus into the world, a silence which was broken by the cry of a newborn Baby Silence is characteristic of the way God works in our world. People who think they are important and mighty never do anything without making sure there will be a blaze of publicity, but God doesn't work like that in our world. When He came among us, it was not in a royal palace, as the Wise Men discovered, but in a stable; not among courtiers and glittering furniture but in a manger surrounded only by the beasts that were sheltered there. Jesus' coming was announced to a group of shepherds out in the fields, not in the corridors of power. God acts quietly, behind the scenes, and we need to be alert and watchful to recognize the truth of what is happening. I believe that we can detect the activity of God behind all sorts of events in our everyday lives - if we are prepared to stop and look and listen. God acts in our lives through the love of those close to us, and He speaks to us through the events which go on around us, through the words of friends and colleagues, even in the silence of our own minds. The Christmas story reveals to us a God who is passionately concerned about what goes on in our world and in our own lives, a God who is constantly seeking to take the mess we make of things and to make something good out of it all. Today's world is full of the tragic consequences of evil, ignorance and stupidity, and God is looking for us to work with Him to sort it out. I believe that is one of the things we are talking about when we pray "Thy kingdom come" and if that prayer is to be real it needs to be accompanied by a willingness to get involved in the problems of our community, our nation and our world (as well as the difficulties and problems in our own lives) and try to identify God's solution and work together to attain it. There won't be flashing lights and trumpet blasts to rally us to the cause. (continued on next page)

God works silently behind the scenes, and challenges us to work with Him to make the world a better place. And Jesus shows us that love is the transforming power through which God seeks to achieve His purpose, love which can make all things new. This is where the familiar Christmas story holds out hope for the world. If we want 2025 to be better than 2024, it is no use just waiting for a miracle to happen. The miracle has happened already - at Bethlehem, two thousand years ago. What is needed now is for us to take its message seriously, listen again to the promise of “peace to people of goodwill”, and make up our minds to do all we can in the spirit of goodwill to help build that peace of which the angels sang. It may seem a tall order, but we have to start somewhere, and for us that somewhere is here. May God grant you all a joyful and peaceful Christmas, and many blessings in the coming New Year.

Best wishes Jeremy

Characters from A Midsummer Night's Dream - Festive Night

of Theatre in Hadstock Village
Hall on 1st Dec.

Thank you to the Whole Pack Theatre Company for this truly entertaining evening of Shakespeare. Beautiful singing at the start led us into the forest. The only 6 actors enabled us to meet many more characters during the course of the Midsummer 's Night. How did they do it? Well fabulously! It was great fun, particularly when they ran rings round the audience! They had a lot of trust in each other to remember which character they were and be in the right clothes and right place!

Hadstock Silver Band – Christmas Concert

Once again, our own Village Silver Band will be holding a Christmas themed concert in the Church on the evening of Tuesday 17th December. The concert will last 1 –1½ hours, commencing 7:30 pm, after which refreshments will be available in the Village Hall all provided by members of the Band. This will include a free raffle for prizes also provided by the Band members.

Last year the concert was very well supported by villagers and it will be wonderful to repeat this again. The Band is an accomplished group of players and very well worth supporting. Remember, the whole evening is free, so make sure the date is in your diaries.

Tim Boyden

They also make an amazing sound - enhanced by the acoustics of St. Botolph's church. Last year one or two solo players were able to demonstrate their talents with individual pieces. In between they play carols for us all to join in. The Band obviously enjoy this opportunity to play for the Village. Last year it was a very joyous start to the Christmas Season. Look forward to seeing you there. Sue-Ed

Elf Mail returns to Hadstock

If you wish to make a donation for this service, all donations will go to the NICU at the Rosie Hospital to help sick and premature babies and their families.

Please drop your cards off any time in December – last drop off date 21st December (but the earlier the better please).

Thank you, as always, for your amazing support

Crime and Punishment in Hadstock: the village 'Lock Up'

If you have ever been to Saffron Walden Museum, you may have seen exhibits relating to crime and punishment, and more specifically an old wooden door belonging to Hadstock's village 'lock up'. There is also a truncheon on display, which may have belonged to our village constable.

A 'lock up' was a small room used as a prison, and many small towns and villages had them in the late 18th and 19th centuries. They were a response to the rise in disorder and vagrancy in rural areas following the Industrial Revolution, and the return of men who had fought in the Napoleonic Wars, many of whom had been injured and were unable to find regular employment.

The pillory or stocks were for minor punishment. Lock ups were found in most rural areas as a secure place to detain someone for minor offences such as drunkenness, until they sobered up, or until they could appear before a magistrate. Theft was often punished by public whipping up to about 1800, after which time transportation to Australia became more common, even for the theft of low value items.

In most communities, the law would have been upheld by the village constable on behalf of the Lord of the Manor or church authorities.

This unpaid role was usually given to an upstanding member of the community for a year, sometimes assisted by a paid night watchman.

Hadstock's lock up was located on the village green. It was built of brick and looked something like the picture on the previous page.

The story goes that the last person to be detained in the lock up was a drunken bricklayer in the mid-1800s, who escaped by partly pulling the structure down. After then, the lock up fell into disrepair and was demolished.

Imagine the scene. How did the bricklayer come to be incarcerated? Did he live in Hadstock, or had he been working here? Which pub was he drinking at? Who hauled him off to the lock up? How did he dismantle it and did anyone see him do it or help him? What happened to him afterwards?

The next time you are in Saffron Walden, pop into the Museum and have a look at a tangible record of Hadstock's social history.

Gill Butterworth

As a postscript to this item:-

Crocky said that the Constable who lived in 'Waylands' liked the Lock Up being on the Village Green as he could 'Keep a look out for Miscreants'.

VILLAGE HALL UPDATE DECEMBER 2024.

As part of the Sustainable Hadstock Initiative, we have recently had a building energy survey on the village Hall which resulted in recommendations and potential solutions for our very poor rating!

As a result, we have decided to confront the problem of poor energy efficiency on two fronts:

1. We will be tackling the problem of draught proofing the hall more efficiently, funding this work from our current reserves as part of our regular maintenance and upgrading programme.

2. With support and assistance from John Lockton, we have submitted a grant application to meet the cost of installing Solar panels and a storage battery at the Village Hall. Fingers crossed for a favourable response as we will be unable to achieve this option without a major financial input.

Many of you will already be aware that we have been awarded a grant from the Lottery Fund to repair our old Victorian windows in the hall. The lead around the small glass panes is very dirty and heavily corroded. These windows will be cleaned, repaired and repainted, then they, and the other windows in the hall will be fitted with secondary double glazed panels. This work is scheduled to start inside in January 2025. Outside repairs will begin when the weather improves.

Our aim, as always is to ensure that our Village Hall continues to be a resource for the use of all the inhabitants of Hadstock for many more years.

Lynn, Kirsty and the Village Hall committee
